Role in the Santa Ana River Watershed

The law firm of Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck, LLP has a significant presence in the Santa Ana Watershed facilitating solutions to some of the most difficult legal issues.

The SAWPA Connection

The Brownstein firm represents the Santa Ana Watershed Project Authority (SAWPA), the Chino Basin Watermaster, Western Municipal Water District and other public and private water providers and end users.

Why is it important to take a regional approach to management of the watershed?

The success of the Brownstein firm is predicated on a philosophy of seeking solutions that benefit all parties to a dispute by looking beyond the immediate points of contention to the larger context in which issues arise.

SAWPA's One Water One Watershed (OWOW) approach to regional management serves as a template for regional problem solving to maximize solutions that serve all interests.

The Brownstein team in the Santa Ana Watershed includes Scott Slater, Michael Fife, Rob Saperstein, Morgan Evans and Brad Herrema.
