

San Joaquin River Restoration Tour

(Field Trip)

November 5-6, 2015

Presented by

WATER EDUCATION
FOUNDATION

The San Joaquin River was the focus of one of the most contentious legal battles in California water history related to providing instream flows for fish. A 2006 settlement between the Natural Resources Defense Council, the Bureau of Reclamation and the Friant Water Users Authority led to creation of the San Joaquin River Restoration Program.

This two-day, one-night tour explores the challenges and controversies related to the settlement and restoration activities, especially in a year of extreme drought. The tour is co-sponsored by the Bureau of Reclamation Mid-Pacific Region, CH2M Hill, ESA and Turlock Irrigation District.

Speakers from key governmental agencies and stakeholder groups will explain the restoration program's goals, its progress and challenges, and its implementation in a time of extreme drought.

Topics to be discussed include:

- Central Valley Project operations
- Fishery restoration goals, current program activities and timeline
- Flood management planning and seepage issues
- Construction of fish screens and fish ladders
- Agricultural diversions and bypass control structures
- Interim flows and impacts to agricultural lands
- Various agency roles in restoration
- How water allocations have been affected by the drought

Tentative stops include:

- Friant Dam
- Skaggs Bridge
- Chowchilla Bifurcation and Canal
- Mendota Pool
- Sack Dam
- Sand Slough Control Structure
- Merced National Wildlife Refuge
- Hills Ferry Barrier on the Merced River
